

Carvana Hicks is a native Houstonian and is currently a felony prosecutor in the Public Services Bureau of the Harris County District Attorney's Office. After graduating from The Kinkaid School, Carvana attended DePauw University, where she earned a Bachelor of Arts in Spanish Language and a minor in Latin American and Caribbean Studies. During college, Carvana joined Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc. and was involved in various diversity initiatives, which championed the rights of women and minorities. Fluent in Spanish, Carvana traveled to Seville, Spain, where she studied at the University of Seville during her junior year.

Carvana's previous work experience includes serving as a media buyer for Starcom Media Vest Group, the media arm of the Leo Burnett Advertising Group, located in Chicago, Illinois as well as the Sr. National Accounts Coordinator for Talent Tree Staffing Services.

Prior to joining the Harris County District Attorney's Office, Carvana worked in the Office of the White House Liaison of the United States Department of Commerce. She also interned for Federal District Judge Lynn Hughes and served as a law clerk to the Honorable George C. Hanks, Jr. of the First Court of Appeals, from 2004-2005. Carvana earned her J.D. from South Texas of Law in May 2004.